

ACT I

A local fisherman (38) is cleaning his boat throughly as if he is trying to make it back to new by the dock early in the morning. After a while, he goes to his house where we see his son (15) getting ready for his school and his wife (35) serving him breakfast. When he tries to share something important he is cut off by some dialogues among the three wherein the wife taunts the fisherman about their poor financial condition and what he does for living. The son agrees with his mom and the two gang up on the fisherman. The fisherman, dejected, contemplates and after hesitating for while and when asked what he wanted to talk about. After a while, he asks the two to join him on the boat today. They are hesitant initially, with the son stating that he needs to attend school, but are later convinced. The three embark on their journey.

ACT II

The father as they start their journey tarts telling them about nuances and ittts and bits of fishing and his life very excitingly. Response from the family is not as he expected, they ignore him and don't take much interest in what he does. The father gives up when suddenly they get into a problem that thretens their life. In that situation mother and the son wants to get out of their. Seeing their father work for the boat with the passion and heart, son starts helping. The son soon lends a helping hand to repair the damage. The wife too helps them out. The family dynamic is restored.

ACT III

They come back to the shore. The boat is at a standstill when the fisherman reveals to his family that this was the last day with their boat. He has already sold it off to someone. We see the mom and son getting sad as well. End.

ACT II(Scraped)

They reach far from the shore and some dialogues follow. The boat suddenly gets a hole in it and water starts entering through the hole. The wife and the son panick and they prioritise that they want the three of them to reach the shore safely. The fisherman, however, also prioritises saving the boat. He starts working to fix the hole. The son soon lends a helping hand to repair the damage. The wife too helps them out. The family dynamic is restored.

